ABSTRACT

Costs at U.S. educational institutions for 1982-1983 are identified. A listing of monthly maintenance rates (MMR) by institution within each state covers room, board, incidentals, and makes no distinction between on-campus and off-campus living. The MMR data and guidelines for additional expenses are for the foreign student in typical full-time undergraduate or graduate programs. A limit on the MMR that was established for U.S. government-supported academic grantees was set at $650 during the 1982-1983 academic year. Another listing is presented of costs at about 1,000 institutions, based on data obtained by the Institute of International Education's (IIE) 1982 Tuition, Fees and Academic Calendar Survey. For each school, MMR data are presented on out-of-state and in-state tuition, fees, the type of academic calendar used, the dates of each academic period (including summer sessions), and registration dates. Complete costs and other information are provided for institutions having a large percentage of foreign students. States are listed alphabetically, as are institutions within states, for both lists. Additional expenses and allowances that may be relevant include: settling-in expenses, accident and health insurance, expenses of maintaining an automobile, additional costs for accompanying dependents, vacation periods, books, additional equipment and materials, field trips, study- or research-related travel, and thesis/dissertation and related research costs. The system for determining MMR, which is based on the Bureau of Labor Statistics system, uses Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas, cost components, (e.g., food, housing, transportation), inflation adjustment, and special foreign student adjustment. Costs at U.S. Educational Institutions is published annually by the Institute of International Education with financial assistance from the Office of International Training, United States Agency for International Development (USAID). The Institute gratefully acknowledges this support.

The Institute of International Education was founded over half a century ago to promote peace and understanding through education and cultural exchanges. At present it is the largest not-for-profit organization in this field.

The Institute fulfills its mission through its service to sponsors—foundations, corporations, governmental agencies, and international organizations—and through its services to educational institutions and the general public. Services to its sponsors are self-supporting; services to educational institutions and the general public are made possible through contributions from individuals, foundations, and corporations.

Among the services made possible through contributions are information and counseling, student hospitality programs, a research and reference library, information service, and the publications relating to the field of international education. Contributions to the Institute are tax deductible.

COSTS AT U.S. EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

Background

Since the 1950s, the Institute of International Education, under contract to the U.S. Government, has been producing an annual listing of selected U.S. colleges and universities which included their calendars, tuition, fees, and suggested monthly maintenance rates. Originally designed primarily to determine costs on individual U.S. campuses and to set monthly maintenance allowances for students in IIE-administered programs, this book was based on annual surveys of the colleges and universities. Over the years, others began to rely on the rates derived from these surveys, and the book came to be used as a general information document both by overseas counseling centers and by organizations sponsoring foreign student programs.

With the wider use of this publication, the survey method for the collection of all data came under question. While the survey method provided the best source of current information on college calendars, tuition, and fees, it did not provide a reliable, consistent source of data for monthly maintenance rates. In fact, due primarily to the varying perspectives of campus reporting officials as well as their differing degrees of experience and sophistication, the method produced widely varying figures.

After considering a number of alternative systems, IIE presented to the Advisory Committee on Foreign Student Maintenance Rates a new system for the determination of Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMRs) based upon the Bureau of Labor Statistics' (BLS) annual review of family budgets in 40 urban and 5 nonmetropolitan areas within the United States. The BLS budgets are established on the basis of the purchase, within each of the areas, of a complex grouping of goods and services.

After discussing the IIE proposal in some detail, the committee agreed on the adoption of the BLS-based system. The committee concluded that the consistent and objective BLS basis for computing maintenance rates was preferable to one that might lend itself to arbitrary and subjective computation; that a fair and adequate maintenance allowance should be based on the BLS intermediate-level family costs rather than on high-level or low-level costs; that there were considerable advantages to a system which lends itself to annual updating based on reliable data for all institutions throughout the U.S.; that it was appropriate to use the BLS single-adult consumption figure which represents 37% of the consumption of the American family-of-four at the intermediate level; and that the adjusted BLS rate should be factored upward both to reflect inflation and special foreign-student needs.

The BLS-Based System

The system for determining Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMRs) is based on the following:

1. Location: Each U.S. institution included in this list has been located within its appropriate BLS area based upon the classification system incorporated in Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (U.S. Office of Management and Budget) being used by BLS as of October 1981. This classification system is updated periodically by BLS based on U.S. Census figures and can result in changes in the MMRs for institutions which have been located in "Non-Metropolitan" areas.

   In 1979, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reduced the number of SMSAs surveyed by 15. BLS incorporated these 15 SMSAs into its "Urban U.S." category. IIE found that this change would result in some very small increases in the MMRs for a number of institutions. Accordingly, IIE calculated the average increase for surveyed SMSAs in each U.S. region and applied that increase to last year's base figure for the omitted SMSAs.

   In those cases in which an institution is located in a metropolitan area for which the BLS does not provide specific rates, a regional metropolitan rate is used based on the average of all BLS metropolitan rates for each region. In those cases in which an institution is located in a regional nonmetropolitan area, then the rate for that non-metropolitan area has been assigned.

2. Cost Components: A base amount on which the MMR for each BLS area is determined is calculated from the following BLS intermediate level figures:

   a. Food: The total consumption for food is used as published in the BLS data.

   b. Housing: The BLS figure for renting rather than home ownership is used; additionally, the separate allocation for "house furnishings and operations" is included to cover items which foreign students must acquire and cannot, as nonresidents, be expected to own.

   c. Transportation: The "public transportation" component is included rather than the "automobile owners" figure, which is slightly higher. Even though some foreign students eventually find it necessary to own automobiles, most do not.

   d. Other Components: The published figures for clothing, personal care, medical care, and other family consumption are included. However, the "other items" component is excluded because it clearly applies to on-the-job and other needs not normally associated with foreign students.

3. Adjustments to the Base Amount:

   a. Single adult adjustment: The base amount, calculated for a family of four, is adjusted following BLS guidelines for a single adult under 35 years of age, resulting in a base figure equal to 37% of the family budget.

b. Inflation adjustment: The annual base figures derived from the foregoing are further adjusted for inflation because BLS statistics, though published in the spring, are based on the costs of the prior autumn, whereas MMRs must forecast costs for the academic year ahead. To make MMRs sensitive to the inflation rates in different parts of the country, IIE uses the actual inflation rates indicated by BLS data.

For 1982/83 MMRs, IIE calculated the inflation rate indicated by BLS data between the autumn 1980 and autumn 1981 and applied that increase to the 1981 base figure. For the Milwaukee metropolitan area, for instance, BLS data showed an inflation rate from autumn 1980 to autumn 1981 of 8.0%. However, the MMR for 1981/82 included the predicted inflation rate of 8.8% based on the previous year. Thus, the actual increase from 1981/82 to 1982/83 is 7.4%.

When the inflation rate predicted (and applied to 1981/82 figures) was substantially higher than the actual figure for 1981/82, the net effect was only a small increase or even a decrease in the MMR. Pittsburgh's MMR for 1981/82 included a predicted 10.2% inflation rate (from the previous year). The actual rate was only 4.0%. As a result, the 1982/83 MMR is actually slightly lower (1.9%) than the over-inflated MMR of the previous year.

The MMRs for 1981/82 and 1982/83 and the net percentage increase in the MMR for each BLS area are listed in the table on page vi.

c. Special foreign student adjustment: It is generally accepted that a foreign student, as compared to a single U.S. resident under 35 years of age, encounters additional expenses because of his relatively short-term residence in a society whose ways are unfamiliar to him. To account for these additional expenses, an additional 5% is added to the base figure.

Using this Book

Many different people and organizations should find this publication useful. Organizational sponsors will have reliable information for all parts of the country; foreign governments, students and their counselors overseas will have the kind of specific information that is essential for realistic financial planning; and Foreign Student Advisers will no doubt welcome the information--for publication in catalogs and inclusion in visa certificates--which eliminates the need for a local estimate of costs.

There are two types of data in this book. The first is the Monthly Maintenance Rates (MMR) at U.S. institutions. The list begins on page 1 and proceeds alphabetically by institution within state; the "state" column uses the standard two-letter abbreviation of the U.S. Postal Service. The MMR covers room, board, incidentals, and makes no distinction between on- and off-campus living. In areas where local housing shortages make it difficult to obtain accommodations at reasonable prices, costs may be considerably higher--particularly for students who do not make arrangements well in advance of their arrival. Books, insurance, and other costs are additional and are covered below. The MMR and guidelines for additional expenses are for the foreign student in typical full-time undergraduate or graduate programs of study. They are not appropriate for short-term students, study-tour fellows, or participants in programs with exceptional requirements. Certain sponsors of IIE-administered programs have established overall limits on the Monthly Maintenance Rate. During the 1982/83 academic year, the maximum MMR for U.S. Government supported academic grantees is $650.

The second type of data is contained in the list of costs at about 1,000 institutions which begins on page 95. The information in this section is that provided by the institutions to IIE's "Tuition, Fees and Academic Calendar Survey" as of July 29, 1982. The user should note that some of the information listed is from the previous year's survey (identified with the letter "L").

In addition to the MMR contained in the first list, it gives for each school both out-of-state and in-state tuition, fees, the type of academic calendar used, the dates of each academic period (including summer sessions), and registration dates. This list adds to the usefulness of the basic MMR list by giving complete cost and other information at the institutions where a large percentage of the foreign students in the U.S. are enrolled. States are listed alphabetically, as are institutions within states. The codes used are explained on page 94.

Additional Expenses and Allowances

After ascertaining the MMR, individual students and program sponsors should consider certain additional expenses and allowances. Not all of these will be found necessary in every case, but their possible effect on budgets should at least be considered. They are as follows:

. "Settling-in" Expenses of $300-$1,000. This will depend, in part, on whether the student lives on-campus or off-campus, whether the student has confirmed arrangements for housing in advance, and if not, whether housing shortages make such arrangements difficult.

. Clothing Allowance. Most important for students coming from different climates. A range of $300-$600 is suggested for a single student.

. Accident and Health Insurance. Given the high cost of medical care in the United States, this is an essential expenditure. Major medical insurance should be part of any nonsponsored student's insurance plan. Allow at least $200-$400 annually for single students.

. Expenses of Maintaining an Automobile. It is impossible to generalize about this except to say that the costs of purchase, maintenance, gasoline, and insurance are high. Foreign students and scholars should usually avoid automobile ownership unless there is no alternative means of local transportation.

. Additional Costs for Accompanying Dependents. These will be found in a table on page xi.

. Vacation Periods. Living expenses are covered by the basic MMR, but some persons may wish to travel, which would be an additional expense. Students living in university housing may have additional expenses if that housing is closed during vacation periods.

. Books. $350-$600 should be allowed annually. In some fields, required books and special supplies can add 50% or more to these costs.

. Additional Equipment and Materials. This depends very much on the field of study. Instruments for an architecture student, for example, might well come to $200 or more; a calculator for an engineering student could cost from $50 to $200; art supplies for a fine arts student could cost from $300 to $1,200 per year. All students will want to consider purchasing a typewriter (from $150 to $300 new, or $50 to $100 used, for a manual model). If a student plans to pay someone for typing, about $30 for each semester course (five courses a semester is a full program) may be expected if there are any number of papers to be done.

. Field Trips. These may be required in certain areas of study, such as geology or archaeology. Transportation, meals, and hotels for such trips are major expenses not included in the MMR.

. Study- or Research-related Travel. In addition to field trips, noted above, students may sometimes find it necessary to travel in order to complete the research for a paper or thesis. These costs are very high and are not included in the MMR.

. Thesis/Dissertation and Related Research Costs. An unavoidable expense for doctoral candidates, and one that may apply to a lesser extent to master's candidates. Research costs vary widely depending on the field and nature of the study. Thesis costs include typing, reproduction, and sometimes binding, and data processing services (which is expensive if needed), and range from $500-$1,000.

Senior Student Grantee/Scholar Supplement

There is a final category of additional expense which should be considered separately from the foregoing; i.e., the across-the-board percentage increment that sponsors may wish to add to the basic MMR for their senior student grantees or scholars who have been accustomed for some time to a more or less comfortable level of expenditure. This percentage could range up to 50%.

TUITION, FEES, AND ACADEMIC CALENDARS

The charges and rates reported in this section are generally for the 1982-83 academic year. If current year costs were unavailable at press time, prior year rates were included.

Following is an explanation of each column:

Column 1 - CODE	These are unique ID numbers based on the National Research Council coding system.
Column 3 - MMR	The monthly maintenance rate is fully explained in the introduction.
Column 4 - UG TUIT FEES Column 5 - GR TUIT FEES	In some cases, tuition charges include fees. Since a breakdown of the two charges was not always provided, a combined figure is indicated with an "F". AY - Academic Year; S1 - First summer session, etc.
Column 6 - CAL	School Calendar. S-Semester; Q-Quarter; T-Trimester; 4-"4-1-4", O-Other.
Column 7 - ACAD PER DATES	Academic Period. AY1- First academic period; etc. S1-First Summer Session; etc First date of classes and Exam period ending date for each academic period indicated.
Column 8 - REGISTER	Registration date for the fall term.

NOTE: The rates published in this book are calculated on the formula explained in the introduction.

CODE SYMBOLS

UG - Undergraduate student
G - Graduate student
